

Matilda Chapter 11: Bruce Bogtrotter and the Cake

Matilda and Lavender talk about Miss Trunchbull. Matilda thinks

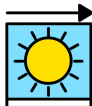

Miss Trunchbull does not get complaints from parents because what she does is so awful, the parents wouldn't believe the children's stories about her.

The next day, there is a surprise school assembly. Miss Trunchbull is angry because a boy called Bruce Bogtrotter has stolen a slice of her chocolate cake and eaten it. She calls him lots of horrible names that mean thief. She tricks him into saying he did eat it.

Bruce has to sit at a table on the platform with everyone watching. The cook brings out an enormous chocolate cake.

Miss Trunchbull tells Bruce he has to eat it all now.

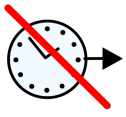

Bruce and the other children are worried it has something horrible in it. Miss Trunchbull makes him eat it all.

It takes a long time, and the children watching are worried he won't be able to eat

all of the cake.

They

want

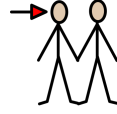

him to,

so he 'wins'

the challenge.

They

know

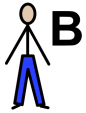

this will

upset

Miss Trunchbull.

Bruce

eats

all of

the

chocolate cake.

Miss Trunchbull

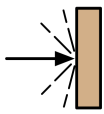

is so

angry

she

hits

him

on his head

with the plate.

Luckily,

he is not hurt!