

Up to April 24 Sentence Strips to Order

Please cut these up into sentence strips and shuffle into a random order first!

Jack used to have a yellow dog called Sky.

Jack loved Sky very much.

Jack thinks the poet who wrote Love That Boy would be cross that Jack copied his poem.

Jack's teacher tells him the poet would not be cross.

Jack is happy with his poem being typed up as being 'inspired by' the poet's poem.

Jack wonders if the poet would visit their school.

Jack's teacher suggests Jack should write to the poet and invite him.

Jack thinks the teacher should invite the poet to their school.

Jack writes to the poet, who is called Walter Dean Myers.

Jack asks his teacher if she has sent the letter.

Jack is very excited the poet might write back.

Jack is disappointed when his teacher tells him it may take months to get a letter back from the poet.

Jack decides it is best to forget about the letter to the poet.